There is representation from the LGBTQ Center of Durham, Triangle Empowerment among other partners. The LGBTQ Center has a mental health initiative. The workgroup is hoping to do a provider survey for mental health and primary care providers to identify needs for LGBTQ youth. The expected outcome is to use the survey results to apply for grant funds. The workgroup would like to call providers and post as LGBTQ youth to assess available services. The workgroup decided to focus on systems level change rather than events such as a movie showing. Many of the LGBTQ community don't feel comfortable seeking services. This survey would help identify which providers are comfortable and competent in serving this population or interested in training to better serve the LGBTQ community. Faith-Based- There are two churches interested in substance use and mental health workshops. This group can partner with Duke as part of a pilot program. Resources- There are no updates. Cindy has combined the resources and naloxone group. Cindy has an intern who is updating a naloxone resource guide and adding information about chronic pain, substance use and other topics. Karen has put together a resource guide on alternative medicines. Cindy will include the information in the naloxone document. The document will be shared with Duke providers and community members electronically and in hard copies. The Lincoln Community Health Center has a grant to help their patients with medicated assisted treatments for people living with addiction. Thirty patients have been selected for a pilot over the next year. After the pilot phase, Lincoln will determine the next steps. The Partnership Communications committee is working on updating the Network of Care website to make it more accurate and user friendly. There are funds to hire a summer intern to begin cleaning up and updating the database. Kimberly knows an intern who may be able to help with the website for up to a year. Naloxone Awareness- Cindy is working with Durham T.R.Y. to contact schools to let them know about funding available from the Clinton Foundation to purchase naloxone kits. Schools would have to purchase the naloxone kits themselves. They plan to have a conversation with the School Health Advisory Committees (SHACs) to gauge interest. The workgroup is focusing on sharing the information with schools. Cindy is contacting community clinics to see if they are interested in kits. Students working with Durham T.R.Y. are going to present at the June School Board meeting about prescription drug use among fellow students. They plan to share strategies to address this issue.		Network of Care website database. 	Once a school police officer is trained, they would be able to carry naloxone on campus. Cindy is pulling a policy together regarding carrying naloxone. Officers would then need to be identified and trained. Durham T.R.Y. is working with police officers on medication takebacks to reduce the amount of prescription drugs in circulation. The committee will work with Glenda Care to provide information and resources for an upcoming block party in her neighborhood.
Review of Quarterly Meeting	Deputy Health Director Joanne Pierce has attended the Obesity and Chronic Illness (OCI) committee to hold courageous conversations around racial equity. The OCI committee plans to continue with the meetings and examine how they develop initiatives. Members of the Partnership have been attending racial equity trainings sponsored by the Durham County Department of Public Health and Duke and will have the opportunity to attend future trainings. There is a desire to incorporate using a racial equity lens within the work of the entire Partnership. FHI 360 shared results of the Partnership wide evaluation survey. FHI 360 will continue to work with the data and share results. The Steering committee will examine the results in further detail at their next meeting. The entire Partnership will have the opportunity to read about the results in a future report.		Marissa will speak with FHI 360 about the quarterly meeting presentation. It was suggested that the Partnership develop more structure and limit membership to active members. There is a need to raise the Partnership profile. This can be addressed at a future quarterly meeting.
