|  | The main data tools they have developed are Durham Neighborhood Compass and Durham Health Indicators Project. A lot of their work is focused on racial equity. The tools they have built include housing data. Users can see things like housing cost burden, eviction, and economy on the Durham Neighborhood Compass. Durham Community Health Indicators Project allows users to search addresses and once you select a neighborhood, it will generate a form with information on resources available like drug stores, grocery stores, households using SNAP, COVID-9 risks, etc. There is also a demographic overview of who lives there. There is an overview of health outcomes in comparison to the county average. This includes environmental stress factors, race, and class. This information is available for all historical neighborhoods in Durham. All areas are covered but may be categorized differently from the way some folks would identify. DataWorks is open to feedback. Median household income is a variable often used, but it may not show the disparity in neighborhoods. You can now look at median household income based on race. Most of the information here is based on census data. Does DataWorks have a housing resource map? DataWorks is looking at multi-family units, etc. They are thinking about how to do more asset mapping. Is DataWorks able to capture data on how many people or families are couch surfing in this area? They don't have that right now. Charita McCollers reminded the group that Durham has coordinated entry in Durham. It gives access to housing services in Durham and they track those who |  |

There were barriers to being able to share data. NCCARE360 is a tool to refer patients between different health and human services organizations. Any person referred has already consented to having their information shared. Data Equity Coalition ProjectThe main purpose of this project is to influence the national dialogue on racism and health, centering the concerns of the most marginalized populations. DataWorks is hosting community conversations, 1-1s, and focus groups. There are three community conversations scheduled. They are facilitated in English with interpretation in Spanish. These meetings are virtual. They are going to create data share backs after these meetings. Neighborhood Compass: https://compass.durhamnc.gov/enHealth Indicators: https://health.dataworks-nc.org/en Registration for conversation #2: https://www.eventbrite.com/e/data-on-racism-and-health-community-conversation-2-tickets-419096447757 Registration for conversation #3: https://www.eventbrite.com/e/data-on-racism-and-health-community-conversation-3-tickets-419701938797 |  |
| Mapping input from recent presentations to Health &amp; Housing CHIPAll 9:15-9:25 | At the next meeting, be prepared to take the information we have learned and apply that to the Community Health Improvement Plans (CHIPs). If you have ideas during the month, send them to Charlene and Brian. We will look closely at our CHIPs at the next meeting.   |  |
